Project Description:

The PRAISE project focuses on addressing polarization and radicalization issues among adolescents (aged 13–17) in urban areas. Centered on schools, the project utilizes innovative training and gaming materials to cultivate critical thinking and socio-ecological competences in students, empowering them to avoid or disengage from radicalized behaviors. Through the development of resilience mechanisms and exit strategies, adolescents can transition towards active citizenship, democratic participation, and social inclusion. The project also supports European school teachers and managers with the PRAISE Toolkit, offering innovative methodologies to enhance teaching activities.

Target group:

School students and adolescents (13-17 years old)

Teachers and school educators

School leaders and managers

Public organizations

Policy makers at national and European level

Project Results

- The development of the PRAISE Competences Framework will provide a robust structure for enhancing school students' socio-ecological resilience to radicalization and violent extremism.
- The creation of an Innovative training curricula and materials which will equip students with essential skills to navigate these challenges effectively.
- The e-learning platform will serve as a dynamic resource for students' education and awareness.
- The PRAISE Digital Board Game will engage and educate school students in an interactive and informative way.
- Lastly, the Toolkit for teachers and school educators will empower them to create "radicalization-free" European school environments, fostering safer and more inclusive educational spaces.

Impact

The PRAISE project empowers educators to foster socio-ecological resilience in students, preventing radicalization. It equips them with resources and tools through a multidisciplinary approach and the PRAISE Toolkit, creating "radicalization-free" school environments. This benefits participating organizations, enhances local and national collaboration, and strengthens the EU's capacity to prevent radicalization and promote social inclusion, contributing to a more inclusive and sustainable Europe.
